NOAA SHIP OKEANOS EXPLORER

Today the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration commissions Okeanos Explorer, the first federal ship dedicated to systematically exploring the largely unknown ocean for the purpose of discovery and the advancement of knowledge. The commissioning ceremony is a maritime tradition in which the ship enters national service and is turned over to her commanding officer. Once commissioned, Okeanos Explorer will begin a period of crew training and field testing of exploration systems in the Pacific before embarking on its first operational field season in 2009.

Okeanos Explorer will systematically survey areas of the largely unknown ocean. When something unusual is detected, the ship will stop to deploy remotely-operated vehicles (ROVs), attached by a tether and capable of operating in depths to 6,000 meters. These and other sensors and systems will investigate the seafloor and characterize the water column. Together with shore-based exploration teams, scientists and technicians at sea will investigate an anomaly or discovery and develop enough data before moving on, to allow other scientists to plan for subsequent missions.

Okeanos Explorer will use telepresence – satellite and high-speed Internet-based technology – to enable scientists on shore at any of five Exploration Command Centers to participate in and even direct real-time exploration while viewing live images from the seafloor and accessing other ocean data. Those scientists, and others on call if a discovery is made at sea, will add their expertise to missions no matter where in the world the ship is located. Using satellite and standard Internet pathways, the ship will also share the excitement of discovery in real time with news reporters, students, and members of the general public.

As part of the NOAA fleet of research and survey ships and aircraft, Okeanos Explorer will be operated, managed, and maintained by officers of the NOAA Corps, one of the nation's seven uniformed services, and by wage mariners and civilians under the Office of Marine and Aviation Operations. The ship's exploration systems will be operated by NOAA's Office of Ocean Exploration and Research. Explore with us at oceanexplorer.noaa.gov.

GUEST SPEAKERS

Dr. Robert D. Ballard
Founder and President, Institute For Exploration

Dr. Stephen R. Hammond
Acting Director, NOAA Office of Ocean Exploration and Research

Rear Admiral Jonathan W. Bailey, NOAA
Director, NOAA Corps and
Director, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Conrad C. Lautenbacher, Jr.
Vice Admiral, U.S. Navy (Ret.)
Under Secretary of Commerce for Oceans and Atmosphere

PLANK OWNER RECOGNITION

BENEDICTION

SHIP TOURS

SPECIAL RECOGNITIONS

For their participation in today's ceremony, our appreciation to ...

Commander Bryan K. Finch, CHC, USN, U.S.C.G. Thirteenth District Chaplain
Spanaway Lake High School Naval Junior ROTC Color Guard
U.S. Navy Band Northwest

For their strong support of the Ocean Exploration Program and development of Okeanos Explorer, its discovery flagship ...

Vice Admiral Conrad C. Lautenbacher, Jr., U.S. Navy (Ret.), and NOAA Administrator
Dr. Richard W. Spinrad, NOAA Assistant Administrator for Oceanic and Atmospheric Research
Rear Admiral Jonathan W. Bailey, NOAA, Director, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations, whose support for and partnership with the ocean exploration program and the development of NOAA ship Okeanos Explorer is leading to new and improved ways to explore the ocean and to innovative ways to staff and operate this ship, and potentially other ships in the NOAA fleet.
Rear Admiral Samuel P. De Bow, NOAA (Ret.), former Director of the Office of Marine and Aviation Operations, who worked closely with and supported NOAA's Office of Ocean Exploration.
Captain Craig N. McLean, NOAA (Ret.), Assistant Administrator, Office of Oceanic and Atmospheric Research and the founding Director of NOAA's Ocean Exploration Program, whose vision helped create a world-class program of ocean exploration and led to the acquisition of Okeanos Explorer.
Dr. Robert D. Ballard, Founder and President, Institute For Exploration, who envisioned and led telepresence-enabled ocean expeditions that were dress rehearsals for the operation of Okeanos Explorer, and who recognized and supported early on, the extraordinary value of live connections from seafloor to scientists, students and teachers ashore, and the value of a NOAA ship for exploration.

For taking leadership roles in the Ship's Conversion Management Team...

Joseph Bohr, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations, and Co-Chair, Ship Conversion Management Team
John McDonough, Office of Ocean Exploration, and Co-Chair, Ship Conversion Management Team
Dr. Gordon Green, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations
Tim Trembly, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations
Ken Long, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations

Paul Reed, Western Regional Acquisition Division
Craig Russell, Office of Ocean Exploration
Justin Manley, Office of Ocean Exploration
Webb Pinner, Office of Ocean Exploration
Catalina Martinez, Office of Ocean Exploration
Lieutenant Jeremy Weirich, NOAA, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations
Lieutenant Nicola Samuelson, NOAA, Office of Marine and Aviation Operations
Lieutenant Commander Doug Schleiger, NOAA (Ret.)

For members of NOAA's Ocean Exploration Advisory Working Group, renowned scientists and explorers whose expertise and recommendations help set the course for NOAA's Ocean Exploration Program and for Okeanos Explorer, NOAA's discovery flagship...

Dr. Robert Ballard, Co-Chair; Founder and President, Institute For Exploration
Dr. Larry Mayer, Co-Chair; Director, Center for Coastal and Ocean Mapping, Joint Hydrographic Center, University of New Hampshire
Dr. Marcia McNutt, President and CEO, Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute
Dr. Vera Alexander, University of Alaska Fairbanks
Dr. Jamie Austin, University of Texas
Mr. Jesse Ausubel, The Rockefeller University
Mr. Terry Garcia, National Geographic Society
Bruce C. Gilman, P.E., President, Marine Technology Society

Dr. Tom Rossby, University of Rhode Island
Kym Murphy, former member; The Walt Disney Company
Dr. Haraldur Sigurdsson, former member; University of Rhode Island

For their submission of the winning name Okeanos Explorer through NOAA's ship naming contest ...

Woodstock High School team members: John Dew, Elizabeth Gazdziak, Eric Hunt, Ashley Pauls, and Stephen Shepley; and Marianne Jahnke, teacher

.....and to those many others whose dedication and skills have shaped and are proudly reflected in this outstanding ship of discovery.
